BEYOND COMPLIANCE: ENDING SEXUAL HARASSMENT THROUGH CULTURE CHANGE

Two upcoming trainings with Jackson Katz, Ph.D.

Traditional sexual harassment training is not sufficient to create a culture of respect for women and men. Real change requires men to join women in uprooting everyday sexism and promoting healthy and productive work environments with expectations of equitable treatment.

Choose from one of two upcoming programs featuring Dr. Jackson Katz, an internationally recognized educator, author, filmmaker and activist, and a founding architect of the “bystander” approach to prevention.

Option one: Half-day workshop

MEN AND WOMEN WORKING TOGETHER: CONFRONTING SEXUAL HARASSMENT AND PROMOTING RESPECT

March 6, 2018; 1:00-5:00pm
Rodef Shalom Congregation
4905 Fifth Ave, Pittsburgh, PA 15213

#MeToo has exposed the pervasiveness of sexual harassment and abuse in the lives of women across all sectors. Many men are appalled to learn how frequently friends and colleagues have experienced this abuse. This workshop will explore the roots of sexual harassment and propose new ways for everyone to take action.

Open to the public. Pre-registration is necessary.

Registration fee: $25 by Feb 20; $35 after
Student discount and scholarships available.

Option two: In-depth training

LEADERSHIP TRAINING FOR DECISION-MAKERS: CREATING A CULTURE THAT WILL NOT TOLERATE SEXUAL HARASSMENT OR ABUSE

March 7, 2018, 9am-4:30pm
QI2T Center, Downtown Pittsburgh

The national spotlight is on prominent men who have behaved inappropriately, and on institutions and individuals that have looked the other way. Leaders need to model respectful behavior and create and sustain healthy environments in the public and private sectors if they hope to prevent abuse from happening in the first place.

For professionals in leadership positions in corporations, nonprofits, community organizations, schools, colleges and faith communities who want to learn a new approach, and leave with a plan.

Limited slots available. Apply Online by Feb 20. (If link is not active, email Sue@fisafoundation.org).
$99 for corporations; $65 for nonprofit
Scholarships are available.
